@GerardAraud Burqa is an attire to disguise the woman inside. Highly misogynistic. @vijaygkg

@GerardAraud Especially when the words to justify are : " virtue and decency ", it stigmatizes those who don't wear it

.@RimSarah Because in a western society, a burqa is not any attire. It is a manifest against the western values of equality.

Yes. It is to the state to protect women from cultural oppression.

((YousefMunayyer)) @YousefMunayyer

It shouldn't be role of the state, eastern or western, to determine how much of a women's body she cares to expose twitter.com/GerardAraud/st...

Between a so-called "freedom of expression" and "inequality between men and women", stark choice.

Shadi Hamid @shadihamid

.@GerardAraud In any case, the right to wear clothes that other ppl consider "non-neutral" seems pretty basic to freedom of expression

A burqa is not a neutral attire. It conveys an conception of the woman as a object of lust, a subject and not an agent of history.
